

CONTENT

Introduction.....	7
1. Literature review.....	10
2. Formation of the idea of Czecho-Slovak statehood in the second half of the 19th century until 1918.....	12
2.1. Formation of national consciousness of the Czech and Slovak nation and possibilities of state law organization of the “Czechoslovak space”.....	12
2.2 The rise of Slovak politics by strengthening Czecho-Slovak reciprocity before the outbreak of the First World War.....	27
2.3. Proposals for the post-war order of Slovakia.....	30
2.4. The common idea of the Czech and Slovak nations for the establishment of Czecho-Slovakia.....	36
3. Slovakia in the new Czecho-Slovak state.....	46
3.1. Declaration by the Czecho-Slovak Republic.....	46
3.2. Discussions of the Executive Committee of the Slovak National Council and Disputes over the Secret Clause of the Declaration of the Slovak Nation.....	50
3.3. The Czecho-Slovak Republic and its political system.....	56
4. Research methods.....	59

5. Alternative views on the establishment of the Czecho-Slovak Republic in 1918.....	61
5.1. Czechoslovakism as a tool for assimilation of the Slovak nation	61
5.2. Augustín Marián Húska – Criticism of Czechoslovakism.....	73
5.3. Slovakia as a conquered territory?	79
6. Remarks of British diplomats on the domestic political issue in Czecho-Slovakia in relation to Slovaks	88
6.1. Envoy Cecil Gosling in Prague (1919-1920).....	89
6.2. Envoy George Clerk in Prague (1920-1926)	95
7. Why 28. October should not be a public holiday for Slovaks?	106
8. Statements of pro-national personalities (historian Ivan Mrva, journalist Ľudovít Števko, ex-politician for the Slovak National Party Jozef Prokeš).....	116
8.1. Interview with Ivan Mrva	116
8.2. Interview with Jozef Prokeš	121
8.3. Opinion of Ľudovít Števko	123
9. Assessment.....	127
Conclusion	129
Bibliography	130